Cookie policy

What are cookies?

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers that we put on your computer or mobile device when you visit a site or page. These cookies allow us to distinguish you from other users of our website. They help us provide you with a good experience when you browse our website and also allow us to improve our site. None of the cookies on our website collect personally identifiable information about you.

Our use of cookies

We use cookies in the following ways:

1) Strictly necessary cookies. These cookies are essential to enable you to move around the websites and use its features, such as accessing secure areas of the websites. Without these cookies, our websites will not work properly.

2) Analytical and Performance cookies. These types of cookies allow us to recognise and count the number of visitors and see how visitors move around our website when they are using it. This assists us in improving the way our website works e.g. by ensuring that users are finding what they are looking for easily. These are temporary cookies and expire at the end of a browser session. 'Performance' cookies collect information about how you use our websites, for instance, which pages you go to most often and if you get error messages from those pages.

By using our website, you agree to the use of cookies

How to enable and disable cookies

Cookies help you get the most out of our website. However, you may set up your browser to disallow them. Please remember, if you do delete all your cookies, some features of our websites, such as remembering your login details, will not work and your experience on our websites may be affected. For your convenience we provide links to the cookie management pages for the most popular web browsers:
